Study Lines to Improve Figure

Stout Woman May Do Mucl for Her Appearance in Choice of Clothing.

A stout woman can do many things that will make her appear more slender if she will but study her lines and spend a little time in experimenting. Of course, first of all, it is necessary for her to get a corset that best suits her figure. Then her attention must be given to her underwear. This should fit well and be made without any extra fullness.

As to the outer clothes, there is much to be said about them. In the first place, contrasting materials and colors should be avoided by the woman having a large figure. Big patterns or wide stripes are also to be shunned by her. A modest pin stripe can be worn, for it always looks neat and has a tendency to increase the height. It is noticeable that the figure of a stout woman is inclined to curve in at the waist line and consequently makes the hips and bust stand out prominently. To improve this condition it is advisable to make the bodice of a frock long, so that it falls over the hips, and thus forms an unbroken No hard-and-fast rule can be laid down as to just how far down the bodice should reach. This must be determined by the maker of the dress. The jacket effects, so prominent this season, are splendid for carrying out the elongated blouse idea. Of course, the jacket should be shorter in front than in the back. The bottom of the jacket can be finished with a band of the material embroidered or braided or with a cording of the

The stout woman should be slow to follow the short skirt fashion. She need not have her skirts extremely long; a happy medium can very easily be

Hats have a great deal to do with a woman's appearance. There are stout women who look well in small, closefitting hats, while there are many others who look ridiculous in a hat of this description. In the latter case a hat with a medium sized brim should be chosen. It is a mistake for the stout woman to wear a large hat. If the trimming of the hat is made to stand up the wearer of the model will appear thinner and taller. Wings and loops of ribbon are admirable for this

If a woman of large dimensions is not able to decide for herself just what is best for her, she should observe other stout women closely and see which styles look best on them and which are most becoming. One or two trips to a first class modiste will also prove a worth while investment, for in this way a woman can learn many things to her advantage.
